

Steven McCoy

Award Winning Journalist & Inspirational Speaker

Steven McCoy is an award-winning journalist, an inspiring change maker, and a sought-after writer and speaker. In 2022, he was recognized as the world's first Black deaf-blind journalist. McCoy brought his passion for the arts to the many red carpets events he covered, and his personality shines through on his lively podcast, called "Sessions with Steven," which regularly features personal interviews with media and public figures. McCoy was recently diagnosed with Usher syndrome, a debilitating disease that impacts his hearing and sight. After making peace with the diagnosis, he decided to advocate for the deaf and blind community and share his message of resilience and hope.

McCoy is a graduate of Essex County College with a degree in communications. He also completed courses at New Jersey City University and Stevenson University.

His work has been featured in several media outlets including Revolt, Hollywood Unlocked, CNN, Yahoo, NBC, CBS, LA Weekly, IB Times, Thrive Global, Influencive, Net News Ledger, and others.

AVAILABLE FOR

- SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS
- HOSTING
- BRAND AMBASSADOR & PARTNERSHIPS
- ACTING & COMMERCIALS

Steven McCoy

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

- Spangenberg-Chappell Memorial Award
- Board of Director for the Usher Syndrome Coalition
- Leadership Board for Foundation Fighting Blindness
- Disney Alumni Association Inductee
- Named AT&T's "Black Future Maker"
- Representative for the State of New Jersey Rehabilitation Council
- Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Certificate by New York State
- Oklahoma State Award by Oklahoma State Rehabilitation Council
- Excellence Award by the Multicultural Media Correspondents Association
- "Take the Lead" by National Association of Black Journalists

Social Media Reach 45K+

"Best advice is to work hard and be kind, because you never know who's watching you like yourself. You started as an extra in the movie 'Notorious', and look at you, now interviewing me!"

Angela Bassett

<https://linktr.ee/Stevenmccoyb>

CONTACT

STEVEN McCOY
steven@spokenent.com
(212) 810-0744
www.spokenent.com

